Amends

Thousand tears have plunged and shattered to pieces like glass as it hits the floor

So many words unstated nevertheless you were unveiled

All is exposed and weighs me down like a constant burden upon my mind

Cease wanting to change my intentions by twisting my words in my mouth

We never imagined it'd end like this

You can plan for a change of weather, but I never planned on you changing your mind

Deep down I must have always known this would be inevitable

It's so casually cruel in the name of being honest

I knew I'd have to pay

This is the last time I'm trying, I can't bear knowing the fault is all mine

This is the last time I'll attempt to sweeten the bitterness

I'm aware that when I think about you I'm simply squandering time, wasting it

Nevertheless I put on a brave face,

And fail to confess to my accountability

Found I wasn't so tough after all

I constantly dread waking up to the same trail of thoughts I get trapped in in bad dreams

Eventually, I picked myself back up, put one foot in front of the other

Finally I know I am enough, possible to be loved

No more grieving mistakes that aren't merely mine

Looked in the mirror and decided to try a last time

Now this is me, conquering my pride standing in front of you saying I'm sorry

This is the final time I'll try repair what was ruined by our selfish ways

What might have been the most extraordinary memory,

If we hadn't painted all over it in every shade of grey

I'd go back in time and change it but I can't

I'd turn around and make it all right
